By W. R. WALKER DEAD.

Terrible Divine Passes Away
—The Monday Night.

W. R. Walker died at 12 o'clock was 64 years, Feb. 22, at his house and those west of the city. He had had a precarious condition for several months, and his friends hoped he would only die a natural death, which he did.

He suffered a relapse which his state of health could not stand and he peacefully passed away.

W. R. Walker was a Baptist minister part of the greater part of his life
devoted to the work of preaching

the gospel. Of late years he had been in poor health, and had to give up his field near the city, holding his membership with the Baptist Church in this city. In his death has ended the career of a man who was a member of the most distinguished pastors of the country.

He was a man who was a citizen of the world, and as such a citizen

he did what was right and just.

He was a man example worthy of the world who did what was right and just.

He was a man who lived to live

and die to die.

REV. W. H. WALKER DEAD.
Monday Night.

The venerable Divine passes away.

Rev. W. B. Walker died at 12 o'clock Monday morning, Feb. 22, in his 80th year, of the infirmities of age.

He had been in a precarious condition, for several days, but was better on Saturday, but he suffered a relapse which his feeble state of health could not stand, and he peacefully passed away.

Mr. Walker, the greater part of his long life, was devoted to the work of preaching the gospel. Of late years he had been quietly spending the evening of life on his farm near the city, holding baptisms in his little Baptist church in this city. In his last days he passed from the scene of action, and a man who exemplified in a marked degree the beauties of the Christian religion. As a preacher, as a neighbor and friend, as a man and as a citizen, he lived up to the golden rule, and in all things did what was right and just. He was a man of great worthiness, worthy of all who desire to live good and upright lives.

We have not at hand the facts for writing a formal obituary. Mr. Walker had lived out the allotted three years and ten. He leaves several daughters and one son, Mr. B. Walker.

The funeral services were held at 6 o'clock Tuesday afternoon at the Baptist church in this city, Rev. C. H. Nash presiding. A brief funeral discourse, after which the interment took place in the City Cemetery.

Our Old Fire Company.

"That was a gay old company that we belonged to. Just one back in time, and we had a great time with our machine."

Do you remember that big fire at Hotel Row, one freezing night, when the firemen were all out?

Then their burning rooms and down the ladder in their night-clothes; and down how Dick Green brought down two ladders?"

He got the carter dreadfully, from so much exposure, and suffered from a bad attack of consumption, which once he was going in consumption once again. But finally, he heard of Dr. Sage's Cancer Clinic, and when it got him, he left you, Joe, that carter ready is a great strength. It saved a good deal of time and as brave a friend as ever trod these halls."
